

SARAH ANN LIDDIARD SMITH.
Biography from the Lehi Centennial History

Sarah Ann Liddiard Smith was the daughter of Levi A. and Ann Liddiard. She was born at Windsor, England October 16, 1831, and joined the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints July 14, 1848, at East Woodhay, Hampshire, England, being a member of the Landers Conference.

She sailed for America on the ship, "Hudson," July 3, 1864; there were 1100 persons on board and six weeks were consumed in crossing the ocean. She crossed the plains in Captain Warren Snow's company and during the journey she cooked for a number of elders who had been on missions and were returning home.

She arrived in Salt Lake City. November 31, 1864, and was married to Joseph J. Smith February 10, 1865, coming to Lehi the same year. She was the mother of two daughters, one dying in infancy, the other is Mrs. Florence Cotter. Mrs. Smith was of a refined yet independent disposition; having received a liberal education, she taught school for a number of years and was identified with the Sunday School as a teacher.

In 1887 she built a hotel by the Denver and Rio Grande depot which she conducted for a number of years. She died September 25, 1909.
