Dignity: The Quality of Being Worth of Esteem

WRITTEN BY MAYOR MARK JOHNSON

Many years ago, a friend told me about a business trip he was on in a very populated city. He was with a work partner walking through a crowded park where they had to sidestep a homeless man lying in their path. My friend didn't think much of it until his partner fell silent in their conversation. After a moment, his partner said, you know, that man back there is a mother's child. She loved him as she held him in her arms and realized his true potential. The mutual silence that followed that comment caused my friends perspective to change significantly. And, I have never forgotten that lesson.

I write this after my final assigned meeting with our Utah County Winter Response Task Force as we get ready for the cold weather to return. This is one meeting that sometimes gets lost in the fog of all other responsibilities I have as mayor, but it shouldn't have. It is an important task. Everyone is susceptible to hard times and we, the fortunate, should first realize how blessed we are, and second, engage in charity.

Being sensitive to others' needs takes work. It requires observation. It means doing more than just telling someone if they need help to call you. It takes action.

There are many opportunities that surround us. Volunteering at a homeless shelter or providing food, blankets, or personal care kits at any outreach center can be critically important to someone's life, and their future.

The path toward dignity is an important one. The dignity from a warm night's rest, the dignity of clean clothing, the dignity of a good meal, and the dignity of having someone who cares. A helping hand at the right moment can create the dignity of a better life that leads to a self-sustaining future.

My hope for this Christmas season is that we recognize that each of us were once held in a mother's arms and looked upon with love and with the greatest potential. Please work to give someone a new future this year. Don't expect it to be easy because doing good things is often very uncomfortable. Offer charity and provide dignity to someone who needs it, because we are all "a mother's child".

May you have a wonderful Christmas this season by giving the gift of dignity.

Mayor Mark Johnson

Streets

Winter Parking Code Update

Lehi City has updated its winter parking regulations to improve snow removal and safety on city streets.

No on-street parking is allowed during snow storms and for 48 hours after a storm ends or when snow or ice accumulation reaches 1 inch or more on the traveled roadway.

Overnight parking is now allowed during the winter months outside of these conditions.

Lehi Police will provide additional enforcement of this new code. Thank you for helping keep our roads safe and clear this winter!
